Brief introduction on the EHS regulations service of TJE

At present, EHS concept has gone deeply into various industries, allowing enterprises to strategically deal with challenges in environmental, health and safety field, blending the sustainable development into enterprise strategy, making enterprise developing many years in many developed countries. In China, more and more enterprises will face the challenge of EHS with the perfection of Chinese laws and regulations; it should be the basic requirement of EHS management for laws compliance.

Since the end of 2012, TJE has started providing the EHS services with a team who owns rich experience. TJE has developed an environmental, health, safety and other laws and regulations checklist covering national and many provincial and cities level, to help enterprise to understand the industry, product, process and operation requirements of the latest EHS regulations. In the process of establishing and implementing EHS management system, this list/database could provide reasonable, timely and effective management platform, effectively reduce EHS costs, risks and responsibilities. We have provided database establishment and updating services for many companies. The list/database is updated annually, quarterly, monthly or tailored by the client.

Based on providing the EHS laws and regulations services, TJE could assist enterprises develop their own inspection form and evaluation system, and they can provide EHS compliance audit. For the non-conformance issues TJE could assist the site to close it to avoid the risk. TJE could provide EHS regulation services for chemical, pharmaceutical, manufacturing, automotive, medical, real estate, biotechnology and other industries.
